

Protection Companies

In an industry where client expectations are high and operational conditions are constantly evolving, protection companies are always seeking ways to elevate team readiness, broaden capabilities, and deliver greater value to their clients. Adding edged weapon training to your organization's development program is a powerful way to enhance performance, build professional confidence, and reinforce your company's commitment to excellence.

At Tom Sotis LLC, we offer edged weapon training designed specifically for professionals in the protection industry—training that complements your existing programs and helps your team thrive in close-quarters environments where every second matters.

A Valuable Addition to Your Existing Curriculum

Close-Quarters Versatility:

Knife training provides an effective complement to existing defensive tactics and firearms instruction. In tight, dynamic environments—such as crowded venues, confined hallways, or transport vehicles, having an edged weapon option expands your team's ability to respond with precision and control.

Seamless Integration:

Our training is designed to fit within the structure of your existing operational framework. Whether used as a standalone module or integrated into a broader defensive program, edged weapon skills add depth without disrupting your current methodology.

Tactical Continuity Across Roles:

From executive protection to corporate security, event safety, and mobile teams, edged weapon training supports a wide range of operational roles. It provides continuity of capability—ensuring each team member has the tools and confidence to act effectively in critical moments.

Supporting Your Company's Mission and Identity

Professional Development That Builds Morale:

Advanced training opportunities foster growth, loyalty, and engagement among team members. By offering edged weapon training, you show your commitment to your team's development, reinforcing a culture of professionalism and shared purpose.

Scalable and Customizable Delivery:

We offer flexible options that fit your company's needs, from direct instruction at your location to licensing and certifying your own trainers. Whether you operate regionally or globally, we help you deliver consistent, high-quality training across your organization.

Aligned with Your Standards:

Tom Sotis LLC works with you to ensure that every aspect of our program complements your company's mission, values, and operational standards. Our training is not a replacement—it's a refinement that strengthens what you already do well.

Adding Value for Your ClientsIncreased Confidence in Complex Environments:

Clients appreciate protection teams that are not only capable but adaptable. When edged weapon training is part of your offering, clients understand that your team is prepared to handle a wider range of threats—discreetly, decisively, and in alignment with legal and ethical standards.

Enhanced Public and Private Venue Readiness:

Our training equips protectors to perform effectively in situations where firearms may be restricted or undesirable. This allows your company to deliver protection services in corporate offices, international assignments, high-density events, and other sensitive environments with increased agility.

A Differentiator in a Competitive Market:

Adding edged weapon certification sets your company apart—not just as a service provider, but as a leader committed to advanced preparedness and professional excellence.

Conclusion: Strength Through Partnership

Tom Sotis LLC is proud to support protection companies that value continual improvement and forward-thinking leadership. Our edged weapon training is more than a skill upgrade—it's a strategic enhancement that fits naturally into your company's broader mission.

By equipping your team with this additional layer of capability, you're not only strengthening their confidence and safety, you're reinforcing the trust your clients place in your company every day.